CHARRED BODY OF MRS. L. B. HARRIS FOUND IN THE RUINS OF HER HOME

Searching Party Makes Horrible Discovery at 3:30 After Fire at Ashland Farm.

HOUSE IS BURNED TO GROUND

Mrs. Harris Last Seen There at Nine O'clock Today—Alone Remained—der of Time.

HER SON BECOMES HYSTERICAL

Origin, and Manner in Which Well Known Woman Met Death, Will Remain Mystery.

The body of Mrs. Harris was found in the ruins of her home, Ashland Farm, at three-thirty o'clock, by a party of neighbors who organized a searching party. The body was horribly burned and could hardly be recognized. It was found at the southwest corner of the house under a pile of brick. Apparently the brick chimney, which ran up through the center of the house, had fallen over on her.

It is highly probable that the charred remains of the body of Mrs. L. B. Harris, prominent club woman and well known in Rushville, is lying in the ruins of her beautiful country home, five miles northeast of Rushville. The house burned to the ground this afternoon and it is believed that Mrs. Harris died in the flames. At three o'clock the ruins had not cooled off enough for the searchers to begin work. Every indication was that the body of Mrs. Harris would be found there.

The fire was discovered about one o'clock this afternoon by Forrest Brooks, who was posting bills in that section of the county. James Alexander, the nearest neighbor of the Harris family, was called, and the two men endeavored to enter the house. The fire had gained such headway that nothing could be saved.

The impression prevailed for a time that both Mr. and Mrs. Harris were away. Mr. Harris was known to have gone to Cambridge City this morning, and it was thought Mrs. Harris had come to this city. When the horse, which she drives, and a buggy, were found in the barn, the suspicion of neighbors was aroused.

Investigation led to the belief that Mrs. Harris must have been burned, as no one had seen her since nine o'clock this morning. L. B. Harris was notified at Cambridge City and hurried here on the afternoon train. Paul Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris, who lives a short distance east of Rushville was called.

He arrived after all hopes of entering the house had passed. He was of the opinion that the body of his mother would be found in the house. Paul could not stay at the scene of the fire. He became hysterical and had to be taken to the home of James Alexander.

James Alexander is confident that he heard the scream of a woman shortly after noon. He thought nothing of it at the time, but in the light of what developed, recalls distinctly that he heard the shriek of one who was evidently in distress.

Mrs. Harris was last seen this morning at nine o'clock, so far as could be learned this afternoon. About that time her son Paul and a colored boy, who is employed on the Harris place, left the Harris farm.

No person could be found who had seen Mrs. Harris since nine o'clock.

The suspicion that Mrs. Harris had met death in the fire was strengthened, and became an accepted fact, when Paul Harris arrived and said that he had left his mother at home at nine o'clock this morning, and that she intended to remain there all day.

That some difficulty would be experienced in finding Mrs. Harris' body if she really was burned to death, was the general belief this afternoon. The house was a mass of ruins and it is likely that it will require several hours for neighbors to search the debris. And again it is possible that her body might have been burned to pieces since there was no fire fighting apparatus at hand to check the flames.

The origin of the fire will ever remain a mystery. James Alexander and Brooks, who attempted to enter the house soon after the fire was discovered, say that it appeared that the blaze had started in the second story. The house was a mass of flames at that time and they were driven back by smoke and heat. Had they known Mrs. Harris was in the house, it is likely they would have made an attempt to fight their way through the flames.

The theory was advanced that possibly Mrs. Harris died of heart failure and did not suffer the agony of being burned to death. She had been in poor health much of the time during her life.

Mrs. Harris was a very well known woman. She was a member of the Monday Circle and other Rushville women's clubs. She was an active member of the First Presbyterian church. She was about fifty years old.

The Harris home was known as Ashland Farm. It was one of the modern farm homes of the county. The house contained eight rooms and was comparatively new. It was impossible to learn this afternoon the amount of insurance carried.

CORONER FILES CARTHAGE VERDICT

Holds to Contention That Bullet Was Fired by Linscott in Fit of Anger.

DEATH WAS INSTANTANEOUS

Dr. A. G. Shauck of Arlington filed the coroner's verdict in the Carthage tragedy of a week ago last Wednesday with the clerk of the Rush circuit court this afternoon. The verdict reiterates the belief of Dr. Shauck, expressed yesterday, that the shooting was not accidental, but that the trigger was pulled by the Linscott boy while in a "fit of anger." The following is the verdict:

"I, A. G. Shauck, coroner of Rush county, have examined the body of Howard McDaniel, and heard the testimony of the witnesses, which said testimony is hereto attached, do hereby find that the deceased came to his death by being shot through the right lung by Roy Linscott, the shot being fired from a .38 calibre revolver. The bullet entered the body about an inch below the outer third of right clavicle, penetrated the right lung, severed the aorta just above the heart and could be felt just under the point of the left scapula. Death was instantaneous. Linscott fired the shot in a fit of anger."

The verdict describes the McDaniel boy as being thirteen years old, five feet in height, black hair, brown eyes, and dark complexion.

ADRIAN NEWENS HAS THE 'GOODS'

Popular Humorist Who Comes Here Sunday is Foremost in Lecturers of His Class.

CRITIC FOR LECTURE BUREAU

It Was he Who Heard Jesse Pugh and Decided That he Would Do.

Adrian Newens, who will deliver his popular and funny lecture on "The Message From Mars" to the men and women of Rushville at the Main Street Christian church Sunday afternoon, is probably the foremost humorist on the Lyceum stage today. He vies with Wilbur D. Nesbit, the Hoosier wit, and other well known characters of the chautauqua platform.

Mr. Newens is the critic for the Redpath Lyceum Bureau by which he is employed. It was Mr. Newens who heard Jesse Pugh of this city and decided that he had ability. Mr. Pugh went to Chicago to get a hearing before Adrian Newens and later the famous humorist came to this city to hear Jesse give a little recital at his home. Mr. Newens thought enough of the local man's work to place him at the head of a company and name it the Jesse Pugh Company. Mr. Newens' judgment was correct because Mr. Pugh and his company have been making triumphs every place that it has appeared.

So Adrian Newens will come to Rushville with more than a passing interest. He met a number of Rushville people while here to hear Jesse Pugh and he expressed great pleasure at having the opportunity offered to him to come to Rushville to talk.

Mr. Newens' specialty is humor and wit. In fact, he has specialized on this all his life. It is as natural for him as it is for a male to kick. His first attempt on the stage was a complete success and he has been on the job entertaining people ever since that time.

Although he has cultivated the habit of making people laugh, it is a gifted art with him. Off the platform he is funny to the convulsing degree. His manner and the attitudes he assumes on the platform are not ridiculous, but rather such that appeal to the funny side of one's nature.

Adrian Newens has been honored by his fellow entertainers a number of times. Every summer at Winona people of the Lyceum stage hold a convention when they indulge in "shop" talk, and make a little fun for one another. But it's a place where only the best is exhibited. They come from all parts of the United States. Mr. Newens has been on the program at these "talent" meetings several times and has always made a better impression on the gathering of entertainers.

The Men's Big Meeting series for the winter will be closed with the Newens meeting and one on the following Sunday which will be addressed by Thomas Brooks Fletcher. He will bring a message which has been labeled "The Tragedies of the Unprepared." The subject sounds interesting and the subject matter is far more so.

It should be remembered that these last two meetings are open to the general public, it having been decided by the interdenominational committee in charge that women as well as men should be allowed to attend Men's Big Meetings have been held here for several winters but this will be the first instance where women have been allowed to attend.

Fair and colder tonight. Wednesday fair.

RAGTIME TUNE AVERTS PANIC

George Schmidt Sings on in Detroit Theater When Film Catches on Fire.

CLAMORING CROWD STOPPED

Former Local Vocalist Remains Cool During Excitement and Audience Follows Example.

George Schmidt, a former well known Rushville vocalist, who has been in Detroit several months, hopped into the limelight about right in the Michigan metropolis, when he was a big factor in averting a fire panic at the Empire theater, where he is employed as soloist. The Detroit News plays up Mr. Schmidt's photo on the first page and the story of the fire had first column position. Mr. Schmidt formerly sang at the local Schmidt Brothers theaters. He is a brother of Mrs. Fred Beale and Mrs. Frank West. The account is, in part, as follows:

Coolly sticking to their posts, one playing the piano, the other singing the "Skeleton Rag," Miss Abbie Siebert and George Schmidt averted a panic which might have resulted seriously at the Empire theater Friday afternoon, when a reel of pictures caught fire from the operator's box from a current of electricity running through a wire from which insulation had been worn.

Nothing serious could have resulted from the fire itself as the operator's box is encased in steel and there is nothing inflammable inside except the film itself. Several of the audience saw the little tongues of flame shoot out through the small aperture in the balcony, followed by smoke. Some one cried "Fire" and two or three women in the rear of the house started in a wild scramble for the door.

Manager H. M. Starr after instructing the ushers to keep the people in their seats, mounted the singer's platform, told the audience what had happened and that there was absolutely no danger. The crowd would not be reassured and for a moment it seemed as if a general rush for the door would follow. Just as several people started into the aisles the strains of the "Skeleton Rag" were heard from the orchestra pit. Soon the baritone voice of Schmidt took up the air.

The people at once became quieted and marched from the building in an orderly manner, almost keeping step with the music. When the last one was out the music stopped and Miss Siebert looked around for the first time to see if there really was any danger. An alarm of fire had been turned in and several firemen rushed into the building with a chemical apparatus but found the blaze had already been extinguished by Operator Max Ruben and Manager Starr.

"It was nothing," said Schmidt. "I stepped out of the pit and kicked open the rear entrance without attracting any attention as soon as I found out what was the matter and then just drifted into the song. I had exactly the same experience once before, but not in Detroit." Miss Siebert has been playing at the Empire since it was opened nearly a year ago. Schmidt has been there about six months.

MAY SELECT FAIRBANKS.

The Indianapolis News' Washington correspondent says: "There is more than a possibility that if the Taft forces control the national convention, former Vice-President Fairbanks will be the temporary chairman and keynote speaker, it is said in administration circles."

MURDER TRIAL IN APRIL

Slayer of Scott Tarplee Will be Tried Next Month.

The murderer of Scott Tarplee, son of James Tarplee of this city, will be placed on trial for his life in Birmingham, Alabama next month. Mr. Tarplee has received word that the trial is set for the April term. It will be remembered the local man's son was shot down in cold blood by a Birmingham policeman, who had no cause for such action. Mr. Tarplee employed detectives to obtain evidence and the result was the officer was indicted by the grand jury.

NOTED HISTORICAL LECTURER COMING

Dr. Charles W. Seymore Will Speak at High School Tomorrow Afternoon on Lincoln.

MAY DELIVER TWO THURSDAY

Dr. Charles W. Seymore, a noted historical lecturer, who has appeared here before, will give a series of three lectures on famous men of history at the high school this week. The first lecture will be on the life of Abraham Lincoln, and will be at the high school assembly room tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Mr. Seymore will be here only two days and it is likely the other two lectures will be given Thursday morning and Thursday afternoon. They are one hour long. The topics of Dr. Seymore's lectures Thursday will likely be Caesar and Napoleon.

Dr. Seymore has lectured before the Rushville high school before, and that is the reason the high school authorities have made an effort to bring him back here. His ability as a lecturer on historical subjects is excellent in very few cases. Parents and friends of high school students are especially invited, and will be welcome at any of the three lectures.

ALFRED NOLL FOUND DEAD IN HIS CHAIR

Prominent Resident of Fairview Expires Suddenly This Afternoon From Asthma.

TOWNSHIP ASSESSOR 4 YEARS

Alfred Noll, age sixty-one years, died very suddenly at his home in Fairview this afternoon about one-thirty o'clock, had been suffering from asthma for some time and it is supposed that he had a sudden attack which caused his demise.

Mr. Noll was a bachelor and lived alone. His sister, Mrs. Charles Caldwell of Raleigh, visited him today and stepped out of the house for a few minutes only to return to find him dead, sitting in his chair where she had left him a short time previously. He had had several severe attacks from asthma, but had been feeling uncommonly well lately. He served on an election board Tuesday.

Mr. Noll lived in Fairview most of his life. For the last four years he was assessor of the township. He was engaged in raising garden plants for a living. Besides Mrs. Caldwell he is survived by another sister, Mrs. George Hiers of Gings. His parents died twenty years ago.

EXAMS TO BEGIN NEXT SATURDAY

Questions For Eighth Year Tests For Diplomas Are Received by County Superintendent.

DISTRIBUTED TO TEACHERS

Dates For Milroy and New Salem Commencements Fixed—190 in Eligible List.

C. M. George county superintendent, yesterday received the list of questions for the examinations for the eighth year diploma. Today the county superintendent began to distribute the lists among the teachers in the various townships who will be in charge of the examinations. The list was prepared and sent out by the State Board of education.

There are a hundred and ninety pupils in Rush county eligible to take the eighth year examination this year. This does not mean that the graduating class will be that large, however, as some usually fall by the wayside. The number to take the examination is about the usual size.

The eighth year pupils who will try for a diploma this spring are divided according to townships as follows: Anderson, seventeen; Center, fourteen; Jackson, twenty-two; Noble, fifteen; Orange twenty-two; Posey, twenty; Richland, eight; Ripley, four; Rushville, sixteen; Union, twenty; Walker, sixteen and Washington, sixteen.

The first diploma examination will be held next Saturday in Orange, Noble and Union townships. All other examinations will be held Saturday, April 3.

Only two commencement dates have been fixed thus far. They are for the New Salem and Milroy high schools, the former to be held first. The New Salem class will be graduated Friday evening, March 29. The chief address will be delivered by the Rev. Harry G. Hill of Indianapolis, until recently pastor of an Indianapolis church. The Rev. Mr. Hill has preached here and one year managed the Rush county chautauqua.

The Milroy commencement will be held in that place Friday evening, April 26. The commencement address will be delivered by President Kelly of Earlham College.

HIS FAME TRAVELS AFAR

Champion Wolters Has Chance to Play Carl Klein.

Policeman John Wolters, city pool champion, received a letter yesterday from Carl Klein, who recently won the championship tournament held in Indianapolis, asking for a game. It was suggested that the contest be played in this city and it is said possibly Klein may be brought here to meet the policeman-poolist. Klein, by winning the Indianapolis tournament is classed among the best in the State and a game between him and the local champion would attract a large crowd.

ANOTHER FALSE ALARM.

Another call to box 36, corner of Washington and Second streets last night proved a false alarm. This is the second time within the past few days that the department has been called to this box and the offender if caught is promised the limit. To stop the practice it is planned to keep the key to the box at a neighboring house.

SEEKING A WAY TO END STRIKE

British Miners Agree to a Joint Conference.

THE MOST HOPEFUL SIGN YET

Representatives of the Government and Mine Owners Will Meet With Mine Workers' Representatives in an Effort to Arrive at Some Sort of an Understanding Looking to Cessation of Costly Industrial Tie-Up.

London, March 12.—In the efforts that are making for a settlement of the coal strike the most hopeful sign thus far came last evening when the convention of mine workers agreed unanimously to accept Premier Asquith's invitation to meet the representatives of the government and the mine owners in a joint conference. The latter have not as yet agreed to the conference, but they will consider the matter and already two-thirds of their number are on record as favorable to the plan.

The mine owners of South Wales and Scotland, who have refused to make any concessions to their men, are now said to be willing to enter the conference without prejudice.

The resolution adopted by the mine workers makes the acceptance of the invitation provisional upon the understanding that the question of a minimum wage rate is not to enter into the discussion. The miners' resolution agrees to a conference without prejudice with a view of a free discussion of the whole situation.

The closing down of factories, the cutting off of railway trains and other stoppages of industry still goes on. The London & Brighton railway alone has cancelled 500 trains. It is estimated that the loss in wages alone since the strike was inaugurated has amounted to $15,000,000.

MORE MINERS OUT

Strike Spirit Spreads Into France and Germany.

Paris, March 12.—About two-thirds of the coal miners of France have responded to the appeal of the General Miners' Federation to strike for twenty-four hours. This action of the miners is not directed against the mine owners, but is designed to show to the government the "solidarity" of the miners, and as a warning to parliament that the miners are not satisfied with the workingmen's old age pensions law.

Miners Strike in Germany.

Berlin, March 12.—About 50 per cent of the 350,000 miners employed in the Westphalian coal mines obeyed the call of their leaders to cease work.

FURTHER REWARD

Offered For Apprehension of Mysterious Assailant of Women.

Aiken, S. C., March 12.—C. Oliver Iselin of New York and Aiken has stated over his signature and in a letter to Mayor Cyles that he would take pleasure in participating in the lynching of the persons who are responsible for the talk that has been current here since the murderous assault was made upon Mrs. Frederick O. Beach, two weeks ago, to the effect that Mr. Beach himself slashed his wife's throat and that he and his friends have conspired to hide his own guilt by charging an unknown negro with the crime.

The occasion of Mr. Iselin's statement was to offer an additional reward to that already offered by the city for the apprehension of the guilty person. During the past two weeks four different women have been assaulted in Aiken.

Introduces New Complication.

Atlanta, Ga., March 12.—A sensational turn was given to the Grace case when Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, held on charges of shooting her husband, declared that Grace was shot by a woman of the half world with whom he was intimate prior to his marriage. "This woman and my husband were intimate before he married me," Mrs. Grace is reported to have said. "She resented his marriage to me and had threatened to be revenged. She shot him and she has been writing the letters upon which the prosecution hopes to convict me."

She Wouldn't Go Alone.

Cleveland, March 12.—So great was Mrs. Catherine Bucholzer's love for her husband that she could not bear the thought of being separated from him by death, which she felt was slowly approaching her, so she crawled from her sickbed, shot and killed him, and after drawing a butcher knife across her throat, dragged herself to the body of her helpmeet and died.

Mine Workers in Session.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 12.—Ordinances for 150 delegates to the annual convention of the United Mine Workers of District No. 11, which is all the Indiana field except Clay county, where the block miners have a separate organization, had been received when the annual convention was called to order this morning.

WANTED AT DECATUR

Harry Organ, Held at Logansport, Faces Other Charges.

Logansport, Ind., March 12.—Whatever hopes Harry C. Organ, alleged forger, now in the Cass county jail had of escaping conviction on the charge of passing a worthless check on the City National bank of Logansport and gaining his liberty, have been shattered by Governor Marshall. The governor has written Sheriff Butler that in the event Organ is not tried at Logansport, to hold him on the warrant for his arrest from Decatur, Ind. Organ is wanted there on a charge of passing a worthless check on the Old Adams County bank. Organ has been in the Cass county jail for a year and has never been brought to trial.

The Massachusetts legislature has passed a presidential preference primary bill, giving the voters the right to choose all delegates and alternates to the national conventions by direct vote and to indicate for whom these delegates shall vote as nominees for president and vice president.

BALDHEADS

More Women Are Bald Than Men Says Authority.

This is a startling statement but it's true according to an article published in a standard magazine this year.

One thing is certain PARSIAN SAGE will surely prevent baldness by stopping the hair from falling, but it won't grow hair after the head is bald.

Ladies, look after your hair, destroy the dandruff germs with PARSIAN SAGE and dandruff will disappear. It stops scalp itch over night and is guaranteed to be the most refreshing, refined and agreeable hair dressing that can be obtained. Sold by F. B. Canadian Reciprocity.

Farmers, good Republican farmers of Rush county who favor protection as the only sound and stable principle on which this government of the people should be operated, are opposed to Taft for the reason that he advocated free trade with Canada. There seems to be lit-

It Pays to Spray Intelligently

THE man who sprays his fruit or vegetables intelligently is the one who will have the bumper yield to send to market. The large increase in the number of insects attacking fruit trees and garden truck throughout the country makes it absolutely necessary for the farmer or grower to protect his crop by the proper use of insecticides.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS NEW PROCESS ARSENATE OF LEAD

will help you to secure bigger profits from your orchard and garden because its application will insure a much larger percentage of perfect fruit and vegetables which will be of higher market value for you. S-W Arsenate of Lead is light in gravity and stays well in suspension. It is sure death to all leaf-eating insects, but will not burn or blight the foliage.

F. E. Wolcott, Druggist

tle doubt but what it would have lowered the prices of the farmers' product, for a time at any rate Canadian reciprocity is far from being a campaign issue between President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt because they think alike on this subject. Farmers opposed to Taft are, as a general rule, against him for no other reason. Few of them ever thought to consider the ex-president's views in this regard. Let's look at them. The following is an extract from Mr. Roosevelt's speech before the Republican Club of New York, delivered at the Lincoln day dinner at the Waldorf hotel on February 13, 1911:

"I want to say how glad I am at the way which the members of the club here responded to the two appeals made to them to uphold the hands of President Taft, both in his effort to secure reciprocity with Canada and in his effort to secure the fortification of the Panama canal."

"And in addition to what has been said about reciprocity with Canada I would like to make this point: It should always be a cardinal point in our foreign policy to establish the closest and most friendly relations of equal respect and advantage with our great neighbor on the north. And I hail the reciprocity arrangement because it represents an effort to bring about a closer, a more intimate, a more friendly relationship of mutual advantage on equal terms between Canada and the United States."

The following was said by Mr. Roosevelt while speaking at Grand Rapids, Mich., the night of February 11, 1911, and was printed in the Grand Rapids Herald the next day:

"Here, friends in Michigan, right on the northern frontier, I have the peculiar right to say a word of congratulation to you and all of us upon the likelihood that we shall soon have closer reciprocal tariff and trade relations with the great nation to the north of us. (Applause) And I feel so pleased primarily because I wish to see the two people, the Canadians and the American peoples, drawn together by the closest ties on a footing of complete equality of interest and mutual respect. (Applause) I feel that it should be one of the cardinal policies of this republic to establish the very closest relations of good will and friendship with the Dominion of Canada." (Applause)

The address of President Taft at Toledo and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge at Princeton, N. J., last week indicate clearly the fallacy of the argument which has been advanced in so many quarters during the last year or two for the recall of judges and of their decisions. The proposed recall would almost inevitably defeat the ends of justice. It will be vastly better to remove the occasional corrupt judge under the present system than to subordinate all legal decisions to the caprice of a majority of voters who would have little regard for the rights of a minority who are entitled to protection. All astute students of politics are agreed that the recall would be a menace to American institutions. But how few people ever consider such an important item when they are being carried on the crest of a wave of popular sentiment which is not lasting and which washes only the ruff to the surface?

Edwin M. Lee has told us a lot about the terrible monsters, federal employees. We have heard much about the threadbare argument on the dangers of federal patronage. It might be concluded after reading only a small part that has been written on this subject that employees and officials of the government are banded together to control the affairs of this country and perpetrate themselves in power.

Both Washington and Lincoln were charged with using federal patronage to perpetrate themselves in power. When Mr. Roosevelt was nominated, after filling the unexpired term of McKinley, the people were told that federal patronage forced Roosevelt on the nation. When Taft was nominated it was said that Roosevelt used federal patronage as a "steam roller" and crushed all opposition.

But the common sense of thoughtful consideration tells us that Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Taft were all nominated in response to the people's will. This nation never yet has had a dictator and woe to the man who attempts to become one. The charge that Mr. Taft is now using federal patronage to keep himself in power may be twaddle. Mr. Taft will either be accepted or rejected by vote of his party and the vote of the people.

Federal patronage isn't such a terrible thing after all. In the country districts of the south, where republicans are scarce and little interest is taken in politics, federal employees may have unusual power. But the fierce republican state contests in Florida, Georgia, Texas during the last month prove conclusively that federal patronage doesn't dictate republican affairs. In the north, both east and west, federal employees have no power that isn't enjoyed by an equal number of private citizens. Government employees are so restricted by law that they can not take an active part in politics and the federal official, generally a man interested in politics, is handicapped by his position. He could be more active in politics were it not for his office. The idea that a handful of federal office holders scattered through the country can control the political sentiment of the nation is absurd, implying as it does that the great army of American citizens are weaklings who have no opinions of their own regarding the questions that concern the state. We have a higher regard for the citizenship of the republic and a greater respect for the men in public service. Our entire system of government grants the broadest liberty in expressing political sentiment and full-blooded Americans can have little sympathy for those who take no part, refuse to speak and then whine the lamentation that this is not a government by the people.

SENDS ANOTHER FORGER TO "PEN"

Judge Blair Sentences Man Who Passed Worthless Check at Gwynneville Store Jan. 4.

SENT FOR TERM 2 TO 14 YEARS

Thurman Parker of Greenfield was brought before Judge Blair Monday afternoon, where he entered a plea of guilty to forgery and he was given a sentence of from two to fourteen years in the prison at Jeffersonville, says the Shelbyville Republican.

Parker for some time had worked on a farm owned by Jesse and Leroy Dyer, near Gwynneville. On January 4 he went to the David McIntyre store in Gwynneville, where he cashed a check for $11, payable at the Gwynneville bank, and the paper contained the name of Jesse Dyer. When the check came into the hands of Dyer, he pronounced it a forgery and an investigation showed that Parker had secured the money on it. The check was dated December 4, 1911. An affidavit was filed, but Parker could not be found until a week ago, when the officers at Greenfield arrested him. He at once pleaded guilty and was bound over to court at Morristown to await trial. He has been in jail in Shelbyville since Wednesday. Parker is twenty-one years of age.

Gentlemen—

I have tried many kinds of flour, and combinations of flours, and for all purposes I find "CLARK'S PURITY" the best I have ever used. It gives cakes a fine grain, makes bread sweet and white, and may be used perfectly for all kinds of pastry. This makes it cheaper in the long run than other grades. Where one must mix spring and winter wheat flours to get results it increases the already high cost of living. QUALITY and ECONOMY lead me to use "CLARK'S PURITY."

BASEBALL TRUST THE WORST OF THEM ALL

So Declares This Resolution In Congress.

Washington, March 12.—Representative Gallagher of Illinois, Democrat, charging that baseball is dominated by a combination in restraint of trade, has introduced a resolution in the house creating a committee of seven members to investigate the sport from grandstand to bleachers. The Gallagher resolution recites that baseball players are enslaved, that central bodies apportion territory, fix prices "and otherwise conduct the sport for pecuniary gain." Mr. Gallagher wants to be informed whether the "baseball trust" has been investigated, and if not, why not.

The resolution begins by reciting that congress is desirous of investigating and securing information to dissolve trusts or illegal combinations in restraint of trade and the liberties of the American people. The baseball trust is characterized as the "most audacious and atrocious combination" of them all. The resolution adds: "Its officers announce daily through the press the dictates of a governing commission, how territory and games are apportioned, how the prices are fixed which millions must pay to witness the sport, how men are enslaved and forced to accept salaries and terms or be barred forever from playing, and of other acts incident to trafficking in a national pastime for pecuniary gain."

The speaker is authorized by the resolution to appoint a committee of seven members to inquire of the department of justice as to what steps it has taken against the baseball trust as it has other illegal combinations to take testimony that may develop all the facts relating to the matter, to sit during the sessions of the house and the recess of congress, and to send for persons and papers and to administer oaths to witnesses and to employ such assistants as may be needed."

ESTERS FUNERAL TODAY

Coroner Files Verdict in Case of Negro Who Was Burned.

Coroner A. G. Shanek today filed his verdict in the case of the death of Clark Esters, the aged negro who died Saturday at midnight from burns received while he was driving to his home northwest of Carthage late Saturday. The funeral services were held over Esters' body today. The coroner says that it is highly probable Esters who was intoxicated, caught fire from a lighted cigar as there was nothing of an explosive nature about the buggy which would lead to the belief that there had been an explosion. An old gun was found in the buggy.

MASONIC MEETING.

Phoenix Lodge No. 62 F. & A. M. will hold their regular stated meeting tonight. A good attendance is desired.

AMUSEMENTS

The Portola will show a Lubin and a Seig film tonight. "A Noble Enemy" is a fine Lubin drama. "The Other Fellow" is a side-splitting comedy. The Portola announces the week-end feature film this week will be "The Blot in the Scutcheon."

"Driving Home the Calves" is a Kalem war drama which will be shown at the Princess theater this evening. It is very realistic and deals with the days of strife in the United States in a manner that rings true to life. "The Two Flats" is an Edison comedy of the rip roaring variety. Tomorrow night "The Red Cross Martyrs" which is advertised as a real feature film will be shown.

Last night was carnival night for the women at the Palace theater. And accidentally it was the official opening night for the Palace in its new home. The new room is a great improvement over the old one. It is very tastefully decorated in delicate colors which set off the room in fine style. The front of the theater is painted a bright red. Beautiful oil paintings adorn the wall. The pictures help out in the general color scheme.

Each woman who attended last night—and there were hundreds of them, received a large pink carnation as a favor. The theater was packed at most every show. "Fast Lynne" proved an excellent opening picture. The portraying of the principal incidents in the famous old novel made the plot of the story plain and interesting.

"In the Days of Six Nations," a Republic feature picture in two reels will be shown tonight. The story deals with the early days of the Indians in this country. A lieutenant who starts on a journey across a country swarming with Redmen to escort two daughters of his major is betrayed and led into the hands of Indians by an Indian guide. Their trials are many, even after a trapper comes to their rescue, and is himself caught. He manages to escape, however, and brings aid in the nick of time.

Such was the swiftness of the motion with which they were swept downward that he had little need to swim, his only effort was to keep his head above water and to keep from being dashed against the logs that tumbled end over end or whirled sideways, or were jammed into clusters only to burst out on every hand. He struggled furiously to keep himself from being overwhelmed in the seething madness, and what was harder, to keep the lifeless woman in his arms from being stricken or wrenched away. He knew that below the narrows where the canon widened the water would subside, the awful fury of the rain would presently cease. If he could steer clear of the rocks in the broad he might win to land with her.

The chances against him were thousands to nothing. But what are chances in the eyes of God! The man in his solitude had not forgotten to pray, his habits stood him in good stead now. He petitioned shortly, brokenly, in brief unspoken words as he battled through the long dragging seconds.

Fighting, clinging, struggling, praying, he was swept on. Heavier and heavier the woman dragged in an unconscious heap. It would have been easier for him if he had let her go; she would never know and he could then escape. The idea never once occurred to him. He had indeed withdrawn from his kind, but when one depended upon him all the old appeal of weak humanity awoke quick response in the bosom of the strong. He would die with the stranger rather than yield her to the torrent or admit himself beaten and give up the fight. So the conscious and the unconscious struggled through the narrow of the canon.

Presently with the rush and hurl of a bullet from the mouth of a gun, they found themselves in a shallow lake through which the waters still rushed mightily, breaking over rocks, digging away shallow-rooted trees, leaping, biting, snarling, tearing at the big walls spread away on either side. He had husbanded some of his strength for this final effort, this last chance of escape. Below them at the other end of this open the walls came together again. There the descent was sharper than before and the water ran to the opening with racing speed. Once again in the torrent and they would be swept to death in spite of all.

Shifting his grasp to the woman's hair, now unbound, he held her with one hand and swam hard with the other. The current still ran swiftly but with no gigantic upheaving waves as before. It was more easy to avoid floating timber and debris, and on one side where the ground sloped somewhat gently the quick water flowed more slowly. He struck out desperately for it, forcing himself away from the main stream into the shallows and ever dragging the woman. Was it hours or minutes or seconds after that he gained the battle and neared the shore at the lowest edge?

He caught with his forearm, as the torrent swerved him around, a stout young pine so deeply rooted as yet to have withstood the flood. Summoning the last reserve of strength that is bestowed upon us in our hour of need, and comes unless from God we know not whence, he drew himself in front of the pine, got his back against it and although the water thundered against him still—only by comparison could it be called quieter—and his foothold was most precarious, he reached down carefully and grasped the woman under the shoulders. His position was a cramped one, but by the power of his arms alone he lifted her up until he got his left arm about her waist again. It was a mighty feat of strength indeed.

The pine stood in the midst of the water, for even on the farther side the earth was overflowed, but the water was stiller. He did not know what might be there, but he had to chance it. Lifting her up he stepped out, fortunately meeting firm ground. A few paces and he reached solid rock above the flood. He raised her above his head and laid her upon the shore, then with the very last atom of all his force, physical, mental and spiritual, he drew himself up and fell panting and utterly exhausted but triumphant by her side.

The cloudburst was over, but the rain still beat down upon them, the thunder still roared above them, the lightning still flashed about them, but they were safe, alive, if the woman had not died in his arms. He had done a thing superhuman. No man knowing conditions would have believed it. He himself would have declared a thousand times its patent impossibility.

For a few seconds he strove to recover himself, then he thought of the flask he always carried in his pocket. It was gone. His clothes were ragged and torn; they had been ruined by his battle with the waves. The girl lay where he had placed her on her back. In the pocket of her hunting shirt he noticed a little protuberance. The pocket was provided with a flap and tightly buttoned. Without hesitation he unbuttoned it. There was a flask there, a little silver mounted affair; by some miracle it had not been broken. It was half full. With nervous hands he opened it and poured some of it down her throat; then he bent over her, his soul in his glance, scarcely knowing what to do next. Presently she opened her eyes.

And there, in the rain, by that raging torrent whence he had drawn her as it were from the jaws of death by the power of his arm, in the presence of the God above them, this man and

CHAPTER VII.

A Wild Dash for the Hills.

Old Kirkby, who had been lazily mending a saddle the greater part of the morning, had eaten his dinner, smoked his pipe and was now stretched out on the grass in the warm sun taking a nap. Mrs. Maitland was drowsing over a book in the shadow of one of the big pines, when Pete, the horse wrangler, who had been wandering rather far down the canon rounding up the ever straying stock, suddenly came bursting into the camp. "Great God Almighty!" he cried, actually kicking the prostrate frontiersman as he almost stumbled over him. "Wake up, old man, an'—"

"What the—" began Kirkby fiercely, thus rudely aroused from slumber and resentful of the daring and most unusual affront to his dignity and station since all men, and especially the younger ones, held him in great honor.

"Look here," yelled Peter in growing excitement and entirely oblivious to his lese-majestie, pointing at a black cloud rolling over the top of the range. "It'll be a cloudburst sure. We'll have to git out o' here an' in a hurry too. Oh, Mrs. Maitland."

By this time Kirkby was on his feet, the storm had stolen upon him sleeping and unaware. The configuration of the canon had completely hid its approach. At best the three in the camp could not have discovered it until it was high in the heavens. Now the clouds were already approaching the noonday sun. Kirkby was alive to the situation at once. He had the rare ability of men of action of awakening with all his faculties at instant command. He did not have to rub his eyes and wonder where he was, and speculate as to what was to be done. The moment that his eyes, following Pete's outstretched arm, discovered the black mass of clouds he ran toward Mrs. Maitland and standing on no ceremony he shook her vigorously by the shoulder.

"We'll have to run for our lives, ma'am," he said briely. "Pete, drive the stock up on the hills, fur as you kin, the hosses pertikler, they'll be more to us an' them burros must take keer of themselves."

Pete needed no urging. He was off like a shot in the direction of the improvised corral. He loosed the horses from their pickets and started them up the steep trail that led down from the hogback to the camp by the water's edge. He also tried to start the burros he had just rounded up in the same direction. Some of them would go and some of them would not. He had his hands full in an instant. Meanwhile Kirkby did not linger by the side of Mrs. Maitland. With incredible agility for so old a man he ran over to the tent where the stores were kept and began picking out such articles of provision as he could easiest carry.

"Come over here, Mrs. Maitland," he cried. "We'll have to carry up on the hill somethin' to keep us from starvin' till we get back to town. We hadn't orter camped in this yere pocket noways, but who'd ever expected anything like this now?"

"What do you fear?" asked the woman, joining him as she spoke and waiting for his directions.

"Looks to me like a cloudburst," was the answer. "Creek's pretty full now, an' if she does break everything below yere 'll go to hell on a run."

It was evidence of his perturbation and anxiety that he used such language, which, however, in the emergency did not seem unwarranted even to the refined ear of Mrs. Maitland. "Is it possible?" she exclaimed.

"Taint only possible, it's sartin. Now, ma'am," he hastily bundled up a lot of miscellaneous provisions in a small piece of canvass, tied it up and handed it to her. "That'll be for you." Immediately after he made up a much larger bundle in another tent fly, adding, "An' this is mine."

"Oh, let us hurry," cried Mrs. Maitland, as a peal of thunder, low, muttered, menacing, burst forth from the flying clouds, now obscuring the sun, and rolled over the camp.

"We've got time enough yet," answered Kirkby, coolly calculating their chances. "Best git yer slicker on, you'll need it in a few minutes."

Mrs. Maitland ran to her own tent and soon came out with sou'wester and yellow oilskins completely covering her. Kirkby meantime had donned his own old battered, soiled rain clothes and had grabbed up Pete's.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS.

THE MYSTERY IS STILL UNSOLVED

No Clue as to What Became of Harvey Taylor.

MISSING FOR EIGHT MONTHS

Leaving a Party of Neighbors at the Gate to His Home Early One Sunday Morning in August, Harvey Taylor, Well-Known Hamilton County Farmer, Disappeared as Completely as Though Swallowed Up by the Earth.

Noblesville, Ind., March 12.—The grand jury convened to investigate the mysterious disappearance of Harvey Taylor, a farmer, who lived northwest of this city, has been dismissed after having been in session nearly three weeks. The jury could not gather sufficient evidence to justify an indictment against anyone connected with the case, though relatives of Taylor are of the opinion that he was the victim of foul play. The case will probably never be solved.

Taylor was about forty years of age and had two bright children, in whom he took a great deal of pride. According to stories of witnesses before the grand jury Taylor came to Noblesville the last Saturday afternoon of August last year. He left here at 2 o'clock Sunday morning with a party of friends who lived in his neighborhood. Those who were with Taylor say they let him out at the farm of Charles Roberts, that being the nearest point to the home of Alonzo Taylor, brother of the missing man, where he was employed. He had to walk about half a mile. Since then he has not been seen or heard from.

HELD UP

Station Agent and Companion Forced to Submit to Robbery.

Greencastle, Ind., March 12.—Dwight VanLandingham, operator, and Charles Graham were held up and robbed by a lone robber at the Vandalia station here. The robber, who wore a blue bandana handkerchief mask, accosted VanLandingham when he was on the station platform. He drew two revolvers and, threatening to shoot, ordered VanLandingham to throw up his hands. The operator failed to comply with the robber's commands quickly enough, and the robber struck him over the head with one revolver. He then ordered him into the station.

With one revolver pressing against VanLandingham's back and the other covering young Graham, the robber compelled the two to enter the operator's room. Here VanLandingham was forced to open the cash drawers and give the money to the robber. The operator and the boy were then ordered back into the waiting room, where the robber searched both, taking a gold watch from each, and about $4 from young Graham. The robber then compelled his victims to face the wall and not to lower their hands for five minutes, threatening to shoot if they did not comply with his orders. He then backed out at a side door and disappeared. No trace of him has been found.

Mystery Shrouds the Affair.

Lafayette, Ind., March 12.—Whether Miss Dedina Welbers committed suicide or was accidentally killed will be decided by Coroner Vanreed, who is investigating the girl's tragic death. The young woman, who was twenty-three years old, was killed by a revolver bullet which entered her heart. The revolver was held directly against her bare breast. She had been in the habit of carrying the revolver in the bosom of her gown. The coroner has found several witnesses who saw the young woman talking to a man at the point where she fell, and it is said the two were quarreling.

Had No Permanent Home.

Lafayette, Ind., March 12.—In a cemetery a short distance from the scene of the Wabash railroad wreck at West Lebanon, in which two women were killed and sixty-five other persons injured, the body of one of the victims, Mrs. Lulu Grant, was laid to rest. When the husband, R. S. Grant, who has been living in Kansas City, arrived in West Lebanon to claim the body of his wife, he decided that, as he had no permanent home, it would be just as well to bury the body in West Lebanon as anywhere else, and accordingly arrangements were made to this end.

Girls Witnessed Shooting.

Sullivan, Ind., March 12.—Nathan Cox, a restaurant man, was found guilty on a charge of shooting Walker Dooley, a blacksmith, last May. Cox received a sentence of two to fourteen years. The conviction was the result of the testimony of six telephone girls, who witnessed the shooting from the exchange across the alley from the restaurant.

He Didn't Mention Names.

Indianapolis, March 12.—Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, opened the Taft campaign in Indiana with a speech here last night. Mr. Nagel refrained from attacking Roosevelt by name, but his speech contained many thrusts aimed directly at the colonel.

THE SUGAR TRUST

Is Now on Trial in United States Circuit Court.

New York, March 12.—John E. Parsons, the distinguished lawyer and for many years chief counsel for the sugar trust, has been placed on trial in the United States circuit court on a charge of violating the criminal clause of the Sherman law making it a misdemeanor to engage in a conspiracy to restrain trade. With him were arraigned as co-defendants Washington B. Thomas, president of the American Sugar Refining company; Arthur Donner, its former treasurer; George H. Frazier, a director, and Thomas B. Harned, a lawyer of Philadelphia. The American Sugar Refining company as a corporation is also a defendant.

Mr. Parsons, who comes in for the most attention from those in court, is eighty-three years old.

NOT SO AWFUL COLD AT THE SOUTH POLE

Norsemen Had Often Experienced Worse at Home.

Louisa, March 12.—According to cable accounts, Captain Amundsen, who still lingers at Hobart, Tasmania, invites anyone who may wish to do so to partake of his hospitality at the Bay of Whales, where he left fuel and food and a stove to cook the latter with. He further says that he will be glad for all who care to do so to regale themselves with dog meat at his expense, at his depot No. 82. He adds that some of his deserting dogs were never recovered. Amundsen gives in detail his views of the superiority of dogs over ponies for polar work. The dogs he preferred because of the better ability to cross ice bridges, as they were so much lighter than the ponies. During his entire trip he lost but two dogs by falling into crevasses.

Amundsen said that he took many film photographs at the pole. He intimated that his winter camp might soon be made the base for a geographical expedition. In the meantime he thought that perhaps the Japanese polar expedition might have made use of it.

The Chronicle has also interviewed Lieutenant Prestrud and the others of the party which explored King Edward land. They did not say much of interest, but they were unanimous in their praise of Amundsen for his energy, foresight and ability. Their view of the explorer was confirmed by his four companions who went with him to the pole. They said they did not find it very cold. In fact, at times they were able to go without their furs. All had experienced severe weather so far as the temperature was concerned, at Christiania. Nevertheless, they admitted that the trip was not a picnic. They also declared that without Amundsen and plenty of dogs the pole would not have been reached.

Afraid of the Army.

Peking, March 12.—Wholesale executions are still going on. Within a week a thousand persons have been beheaded at Peking and Tientsin. The victims include but few of the guilty soldiers and consisted mainly of members of the lowest rabble of the cities. The outlook is not favorable, and there is an entire lack of confidence in the nation's future. The new government is afraid of the army.

Turned Accounts Over to Governor.

Indianapolis, March 12.—The state board of accounts has turned over to Governor Marshall for transmission to the attorney general, according to the amended public accounting act, reports of five examinations into former public officials' records. The total charges reported, including both direct and constructive, amount to $15,109.56. Of this $2,720.20 has been paid.

RICHMOND LOSES IN ELIMINATION GAME

Sixth District Champions Win From Oaklandon and Then Lose to Franklin Five.

OUT OF STATE CONTEST NOW

Although disappointed over the defeat in the second basket ball contest by Franklin at Indianapolis Saturday afternoon, thereby losing the right to compete in the State championship finals at Bloomington, March 16, the Richmond high school team and supporters came back knowing that Franklin was given a "run for its money," says the Richmond Item. Richmond won the morning contest from Oaklandon and Franklin won from Clinton. The afternoon contest with Franklin was lost by the score of 17 to 12.

The Franklin lads put up an exhibition of gameness and aggressive playing and in each contest it looked as if they would be defeated. The red and white of Richmond students was to be seen in all sections of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and the yells of encouragement to the Sixth district champions urged them on to greater efforts.

In the morning contest Richmond walked away from Oaklandon, defeating the latter by the score of 31 to 14. In this contest the Richmond coach sent in the "subs" with the idea of saving the first team as much as possible, but after the first half it was necessary to put in the regular team in order to turn seeming defeat into victory.

SHRUBBERY IS NOT KILLED

Florists Say Severe Cold Weather Did Not do Much Damage.

A report that hedges, vines and other outdoor plants have been injured generally by extreme cold of the winter is denied by florists and other vine growers, who express the belief that heavy snows have saved the plants during the continued cold "snaps." It might be safe to say," said one florist, "that approximately one-tenth of the outdoor vines and hedges have been killed. This has been the case however, where the plants have not been protected properly about the roots. It is true that the stems of the plants have been frozen and that much pruning will be necessary this spring to place the vines and hedges in good condition to take on their summer growth."

ED CARTER WINS POOL GAME

Defeats George Camp by Score of 100 to 89.

Ed Carter defeated George Camp last night in the pool tournament by a score of 100 to 89. Camp was forced to play an uphill game from the start and for a time it looked as though he would overtake Carter's lead. Carter played a careful, steady game and obtained a big lead in the early stages. The high run of 15 was credited to Camp. Carter scratched seven times and Camp six. The game tonight will be between Ed McKee and Scott Conde.
